MODERN SLAVERY STATEMENT 2021

Our Commitment

iNova's vision is to improve people's health and well being every day. We aim to remain true to this vision in every aspect of our operations. From our direct employees, right through to our raw material suppliers, we are dedicated to ensuring every person's human rights are respected.

Modern slavery is an ongoing and complex issue. We acknowledge that these issues exist in some of the more vulnerable markets in which we operate and source our products from.

Our modern slavery statement, outlines the steps we have taken to identify, assess and mitigate potential modern slavery risks within our business operations. As our business evolves, so to do our practices, and we welcome continually sharing our experiences, challenges and successes. We look forward to working collaboratively with others to keep driving change within our industry and beyond.

iNova Pharmaceuticals Modern Slavery Statement

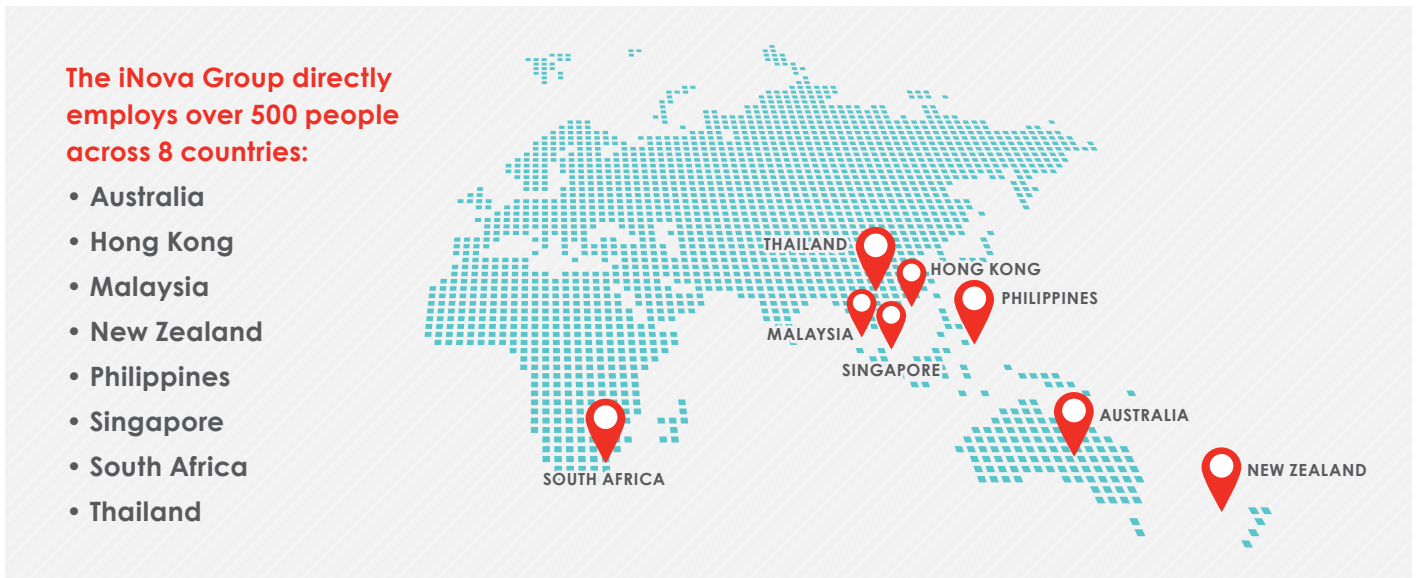

At iNova Pharmaceuticals, we're committed to conducting our business in an ethical and responsible manner. The eradication of any forced labour, child exploitation, deceptive recruitment, and any other form of slavery, across our supply chains, is extremely important to us.

Our structure, operations and supply chain

This Modern Slavery Statement has been prepared by iNova Pharmaceuticals (Singapore) Pte Limited. It covers all fully owned, and operational, subsidiaries within the iNova Pharmaceuticals group of companies (iNova Group) which are ultimately owned by Coronis Health Topco Pte Ltd, a Singapore registered company. Please refer to Appendix A for a list of the operational subsidiaries covered by this statement.

The iNova Group is headquartered in Singapore. The iNova Group distributes and markets a wide range of market-leading, branded prescription medicines and consumer healthcare products to over 20 countries across Asia, Australasia and Africa. Some of the well-known brands distributed and marketed within Australia are Difflam, Duro-Tuss, Demazin, DermaVeen and Invisible Zinc.

The iNova Group does not own or operate any manufacturing facilities. iNova Pharmaceuticals (Singapore) Pte Ltd generally contracts with contract manufacturers to manufacture and supply products to all the operational iNova Group companies.

The contract manufacturers supply finished goods (prescription medicines and consumer healthcare products) to the iNova Group and therefore generally manage the procurement of all raw materials, ingredients and packaging materials as well as the labelling and packaging services.

The contract manufacturers for the iNova Group are located globally:

The operations of the iNova Group include:

Formula developers and contract manufacturers for finished goods supply

Office support vendors, including professional consultancy services such as banking, insurance, legal, recruitment and finance, IT services, office leasing, office goods and services and courier services

Transport and warehouse services for finished goods and marketing materials

Other business vendors including marketing, media and digital agencies, event organisers, product rework providers and finished goods promoters and/or distributors

Modern slavery risks in our operations

The iNova Group is aware that human rights abuses exist in the markets that we, and our suppliers, operate in. The iNova Group is deeply concerned about any form of human exploitation or conduct that constitutes Modern Slavery, and the iNova Group will not tolerate such practices within its supply chain.

The iNova Group's vision is to improve people's health and well-being every day. It is important that we remain true to our vision in every aspect of our operations, and not only in the end product that we deliver to our customers and patients. As the iNova Group grows and evolves, it is important that we recognise the wide-ranging impacts that our supply chain activities can have and that we take positive steps to reduce any adverse impacts those activities have on people or the environment.

The iNova Group is aware that human rights abuses exist in the markets that we, and our suppliers, operate in. The iNova Group is deeply concerned about any form of human exploitation or conduct that constitutes Modern Slavery, and the iNova Group will not tolerate such practices within its supply chain.

The iNova Group's main Modern Slavery risk is undetected modern slavery practices in one or more of our contract manufacturers:

- The iNova Group portfolio of products uses a wide range of pharmaceutical and cosmetic raw materials which are sourced globally. We have considered the types of raw materials that are sourced on our behalf and that may expose our supply chain to increased vulnerability to Modern Slavery practices (for example, the mining of Mica in India is associated with Modern Slavery risks, which we seek to actively manage).

- The manufacturing operations for the iNova Group portfolio of products are conducted in some locations which the Modern Slavery Index highlights as having vulnerability to modern slavery such as parts of Asia including India. Each year, we continue to undertake a risk assessment of all iNova Group contract manufacturers and calculate a modern slavery risk probability for each, based on (a) a risk rating based on the revenue and (b) a country risk rating, which was derived from The Global Slavery Index. We identified contract manufacturers operating in India, Thailand and Malaysia as high risk and they are monitored more closely than, for example, our Australian or New Zealand contract manufacturers.

The risk of Modern Slavery within the iNova Group operating companies is considered to be very low because the iNova Group:

- employs all employees on written contracts and complies with or exceeds all applicable labour/workplace laws, regulations and awards;
- has a Code of Conduct which is mandatory for all iNova Group employees and contractors to certify compliance with annually;
- has a suite of HR policies across each region;
- has a People & Culture (or Human Resources) team for ANZ, Asia and South Africa;
- has implemented a Whistleblower Policy (that applies globally); and
- has an online anonymous process for reporting grievances and breaches.

Actions taken to assess and address Modern Slavery risks

CEO endorsed Supplier Code of Conduct

The iNova Manufacturer and Supplier Code of Conduct ("Code") was launched in 2019 and prescribes the minimum standards of conduct that apply to all our product manufacturing and supply chain activities.

The iNova Group requires that product manufacturers and suppliers ("Suppliers") meet or exceed the standards of conduct prescribed in the Code in:

- people & labour
- health & safety
- the environment
- ethical business practice; and
- related management systems.

We also ask that Suppliers cascade these standards down through their own supply chain.

Supplier due diligence

(i) New Manufacturer Onboarding Due Diligence:

As part of the manufacturer onboarding process we require all new manufacturers to complete a Code due diligence questionnaire before they are engaged. The topics cover (but are not limited to) child labour, working conditions, fair treatment, anti-discrimination and both internal and external management processes.

(ii) On-Going/Existing Manufacturer Due Diligence:

After a manufacturer is onboarded, we continue to conduct an ongoing/ yearly process which requires existing manufacturers to re-complete the Code due diligence questionnaire, to ensure we continue to remain informed of our manufacturers position regarding (topics which includes but are not limited to) child labour, working conditions, fair treatment, anti-discrimination and both internal and external management processes.

Additionally, our implemented due diligence process (which is formal and documented) is aimed to assist in identifying where modern slavery risks could occur and to enable development of a corrective action plan, should risks be identified. This is an important component of our Supplier selection, evaluation and retention process.

Audit process

We have and ongoingly notify our Suppliers that Modern Slavery and Code compliance will be included as part of our annual supply chain audit program. However, unfortunately, due to the continued effects of the COVID-19 pandemic, physical inspections/audits of our contract manufacturer's facilities, particularly those located outside Australia, were not possible in 2021. However, as travel limitations are likely to become less restrictive during 2022, we anticipate recommencing physical inspections/audits of our contract manufacturer's facilities in the back half of 2022.

Contract clauses

The iNova Group standard manufacturing agreements contain (a) an obligation on the manufacturer to comply with the Code and (b) an audit right in respect of the Supplier's compliance with the Code.

Training

We have conducted internal staff training sessions on Modern Slavery for the Operations team and included a mandatory requirement on the global training compliance platform for members of the Operations team to read and acknowledge understanding of the Code.

The Operations team are also aware of the importance of the compliance to the Supplier onboarding and audit processes.

Reporting issues

Suppliers are provided with the means to report breaches of the Code by the Supplier (or any party in the supplier's supply chain) either by email or via an anonymous online reporting tool. iNova Group employees also have access to the anonymous online reporting tool, which allows reporting of any conducts of concern and (where appropriate) communication and investigations to occur.

Additionally, our implemented due diligence process (which is formal and documented) is aimed to assist in identifying where modern slavery risks could occur and to enable development of a corrective action plan, should risks be identified. This is an important component of our Supplier selection, evaluation and retention process.

Assessing the effectiveness of these actions

The iNova Group assesses modern slavery risks, and the effectiveness of the actions it is taking to address the risks of Modern Slavery risks in its operations and supply chain, on an ongoing basis.

The outcomes of monitoring and reporting activities for this reporting period are as follows:

100% of our contract manufacturers were sent the Code

100% of respondents do not employ children under 15 (or other local minimum)

100% of our contract manufacturers were sent the Code due diligence questionnaire

100% of respondents stated all workers are working voluntarily and are free to leave, after reasonable notice

In respect to the Code due diligence questionnaire, all of our contract manufacturers provided a response which fell into one of the following:

- (i) 84% of the contract manufacturers completed the Code due diligence questionnaire.
- (ii) 12% of the contract manufacturers have referred us to their corporate website where they address Modern Slavery.
- (iii) 4% of our contract manufacturers responded that they intend to respond/complete the Code due diligence questionnaire, but are yet to do so. Noting that these contract manufacturers are multinational companies and are not situated in a high risk territory.

100% of respondents stated all workers are paid in accordance with minimum wage laws

85% of respondents stated they have published policies which address modern slavery

Assessing the effectiveness of these actions

We identified from the Code due diligence questionnaire responses that 7% of respondents highlighted potential risks or issues within their organisation or their supply chain (down from the 17% reported in our 2020 Modern Slavery Statement). We continue to work closely with the Suppliers in question to identify the specific issues reported and to implement corrective action plans where necessary, resulting in a reduction of potential risks/issues compared to 2020.

During 2021, COVID-19 continued to create significant obstacles in terms of being able to physically audit contract manufacturers due to ongoing travel restrictions. However, with global travel re-opening in 2022, we are confident that we will be able to ramp up on-site visits to our manufacturers to observe their operations more closely and to verify information provided through the Code due diligence questionnaire.

While the pandemic presented many challenges from a Modern Slavery monitoring and compliance perspective, our experience was that many of our key contract manufacturers actually went above and beyond to support their employees (and families) and their local communities during COVID-19. A number of our contract manufacturers implemented a range of initiatives designed to keep their employees safe and healthy, including by securing access to vaccines for employees and their families, creating "bubble" accommodation/private transport for employees and their families, implementing strict health and safety protocols, and paying for employees and their family members to seek treatment/care within private hospitals. A charity funded by one of our manufacturers that operates private hospitals in India, also offered hospital care to the local community free of charge.

Moving into 2022, the iNova Group will continue to:

Ensure new contract manufacturers onboarding continues to include the Questionnaire and Code adherence

Conduct an annual follow up of contract manufacture questionnaires to ensure modern slavery risk assessment remains an integral part of the supply chain

Conduct audits (which includes in person audits) on contract manufacturers for GMP quality and supplier coder compliance

Conduct a risk assessment of other parts of the iNova Group supply chain

Implement corrective actions with Suppliers identifying risk areas and continue to monitor and verify compliance through engagement meetings.

We were in regular contact with all our manufacturers throughout the pandemic and we were greatly impressed by the level of priority placed on the health and safety of their employees and the support they provided for their local communications.
